Introduction

As a manager/supervisor or lead, you need to be familiar with workers' compensation and how it applies to your employees. This booklet provides you with a summary of the Workers' Compensation Program and outlines your responsibilities in the event that one of your employees has an on-the-job injury.

Workers' Compensation Definitions

Workers' Compensation

The workers' compensation system was established to provide benefits to employees who sustain a work-related injury or illness. Benefits include medical treatment costs, temporary disability payments for lost wages, permanent disability payments for a decreased ability to compete in the open labor market, and death benefits to an employee's dependent(s). Under workers' compensation law, an employee receives benefits if he or she is injured no matter who is at fault.

Work-Related Injury

Throughout this booklet, the term "work-related injury" will be used to describe any injury or illness that occurs during the course of employment and results from work or working conditions.

Example of an injury: An employee sprains his or her back while lifting a heavy box at work.

Example of an illness: An employee gets a skin rash as a result of exposure to chemicals or solvents used at the work site.

Sedgwick,CMS

Sedgwick, CMS administers workers' compensation claims on behalf of the CSU. Sedgwick, CMS makes all liability determinations and ensures an injured worker receives the benefits to which he or she is entitled.

Workers' Compensation/Disability Management Coordinator (WC/DMC)

Each campus has someone designated as the Workers' Compensation/Disability Management Coordinator. This person is responsible for managing the workers' compensation cases for the campus. This person is responsible for advising supervisors and employees on the workers' compensation process and the benefits to which an injured employee may be entitled. The WC/DMC can assist you in dealing with questions regarding an employee's claim for workers' compensation.

The Workers' Compensation/Disability Management Coordinator is responsible for assisting injured employees in returning to work as soon as medically feasible. The WC/DMC will rely on you to provide him or her with updated medical slips, information on the availability of transitional duty (e.g., light duty), or the ability to temporarily modify the employee's usual and customary job.

Your Responsibilities

Before An Injury Occurs

The law requires each employer to provide a safe place of employment. The University is required to have a comprehensive Injury and Illness Prevention Program (IIPP). The IIPP focuses on preventing the types of injuries and illnesses most common in your work environment. You are required to know the elements of the University's IIPP and train your employees on various policies and procedures to be followed. Contact the Environmental Health and Safety Office to obtain a copy of the IIPP or check the RM/EHS website (<http://www.calstatela.edu/MSDS>).

Despite efforts to prevent injuries, they still occur. Therefore, you need to instruct your employees to report any and all incidents of work-related injury/illness on the same day of the incident.

A work-related injury or illness can occur when it is least expected. Knowing what to do when an injury occurs gives your employees assurance that they will be cared for properly.

After An Injury Occurs

In the event of an on-the-job injury, supervisors must ensure employees receive prompt and proper medical care, if such care is believed necessary by either the supervisor or the employee.

For injuries requiring immediate emergency assistance, dial 911. The Student Health Center or Concentra is the university designated providers. You or someone you designate is responsible for accompanying the injured employee to the doctor.

While at the doctor's office, find out from the doctor if the injured employee will be able to return to work. If the employee is not able to return to work immediately, find out how long the employee will be off work. Your description of the employee's normal duties, or of alternate "light duty" work that may be available, may help the doctor make a decision. In this way, you may save the employee lost time from work and assist in conserving sick leave or other leave credits.

Reporting the Injury

Within one working day of knowing there's been an injury or illness, you must complete the Supervisor's Report of Injury/Illness form and submit to HRM.

As a supervisor or manager, you must also have the employee complete the Employee's Report of Occupational Injury or Illness form. Once you have received the completed form, forward it to your department's designated Unit. Your department must provide this completed form to HRM within one working day of knowledge that a work-related injury has occurred. Late reporting could cause a delay in the employee receiving benefits.

Once the injury has been reported and it is determined to be more than first aid, Sedgwick will contact the supervisor to verify the claim and obtain further information regarding the incident.

Maintaining Contact with Your Injured Employee

One of the most important responsibilities of a supervisor is to maintain contact with any employee who is injured on the job. Your support and encouragement during the period of disability will help the employee feel connected to the workplace and will contribute to the employee's desire to return to work as soon as it is medically feasible.

When to Call: Monthly, or more often if important information needs to be passed on. If possible, calls should be made during regular work hours.

What to Discuss: The purpose of regular contact is to show concern and support for the injured/ill employee, and to help answer any questions they may have. Typical remarks/questions may include:

- “How are you doing?”
- “Do you have any questions or concerns? I’ll help if I can, or if not, I’ll put you in touch with someone who can.”

When Not to Call: Sometimes it is not helpful to call an injured/ill employee. Inappropriate circumstances might include the following:

- The employee specifically asks you not to call any more.
- The employee seems to be angered by your calls.
- You have a history of conflict with this employee and believe they may view your calls as a form of harassment.

What Not to Discuss: The goal of contact is not to interrogate the employee, investigate their injury, or do anything that can be interpreted negatively. Therefore, remember:

- Do not ask questions directly or indirectly designed to “check up on” the employee or to “catch them in a lie.” If the employee’s injury seems suspect to you, let the Workers’ Compensation Unit deal with that issue.
- Do not ask for medical information such as diagnoses, treatment, or prognosis.

Absence Reporting

All time off due to the injury or illness must be reported on the Absence Request form (STD 634). No time is charged against leave credits on the day the injury or illness occurred. Employees who are absent less than three days are charged leave credits for the time off.

Notify the Workers’ Compensation Unit promptly when the employee returns to work. The employee must provide a copy of the written release to you and the original to the Workers’ Compensation Unit in order to return to work from the treating physician before he or she is allowed to resume his or her duties.

Employee Responsibilities

Under the general direction of the manager/supervisor employees will:

Participate in achieving safety goals.

Attend safety training provided by the department.

Understand and comply with all safety rules and regulations.

Report all injuries and accidents to the supervisor immediately.

Complete employee's report of injury/illness form.

Perform all activities using the proper tools, personal protective equipment and safety devices.

Recognize potential safety hazards and report them to the supervisor.

Suggest possible safety hazard corrections.

Keep supervisors informed of any limitations that interfere with safe performance of assigned work.

Maintain contact with your supervisor if you are off work due to an injury by providing current work status slips.

Cooperate with the doctor and other medical providers (e.g. physical therapist), Workers' Compensation Coordinator, and supervisor in returning to work as soon as medically feasible.

Workers' Compensation Benefits

Medical Care

An injured worker will receive all the medical care reasonably required to cure or relieve the effects of the work-related injury.

For the first 30 days following the date the injury was reported, the University-designated physician should treat the injured worker. After the initial 30-day period, the employee may choose to receive medical care from another primary treating physician. However, an employee has the right to seek treatment from a predesignated personal physician or personal chiropractor. The predesignated personal physician or chiropractor must have treated the employee and maintain his or her medical or chiropractic records. The employee would have had to designate this physician or chiropractor, in writing, prior to the injury or illness.

Temporary Disability Benefits

The state offers various types of temporary disability benefit programs under workers' compensation: Temporary Disability, Industrial Disability Leave, with or without supplementation.

Before benefits start, most disabled employees will serve a waiting period of three calendar days. The waiting period need not be consecutive days. The waiting period is waived if the employee is hospitalized, if the injury was caused by a criminal act of violence, if the employee is disabled more than 14 calendar days.

TEMPORARY DISABILITY (TD) payments start on the fourth day of approved absence from work due to a work-related injury. TD is based on two-thirds of gross pay at the time of injury. The law allows state employees to supplement TD payments with accrued leave credits up to the amount of their full pay.

INDUSTRIAL DISABILITY LEAVE (IDL) payments are available only to active members of the California Public Employees' Retirement System (CalPERS) or the California State Teachers' Retirement System (Cal STRS). This benefit is a salary continuation program that is significantly better than the standard TD benefit. IDL is available to employees for 52 weeks within a two-year period from the first day of disability. IDL payments are based on the employee's full net pay for the first 22 working days of disability and after that are calculated at two-thirds of the employee's gross pay. Employees can supplement IDL payments with accrued leave credits up to the amount of their approximate full net pay.

The Human Resources Management Office will provide detailed benefit information to the injured employee.

Permanent Disability Benefits

A qualified medical examiner will write a "permanent and stationary" report when the condition of an injured employee has stabilized and is not expected to get better or worse. The report will describe the lasting effect, if any, of the injury or illness. Permanent Disability (PD) is the term used to describe any lasting effects of the industrial injury. Benefits are set by law and are not reduced by other income, even if the injured employee returns to work. PD payments may not be supplemented with leave credits.

The Disability Evaluation Unit of the Division of Workers' Compensation will determine the amount of any permanent disability rating.
